

Faculty of Fine Arts and Music Scholarship Terms and Conditions

To be eligible to receive a scholarship, award or prize ('scholarship'), awardees must agree to meet all requirements. For some scholarships there are additional requirements not listed on this agreement, but these will be outlined in the scholarship's description online and/or in the letter of notification from the Dean. Students may potentially be excluded from future scholarships if all requirements are not met.

Responsibilities of the chosen scholar

Prize recipients have the following responsibilities:

- To acknowledge the Faculty of Fine Arts and Music ('the Faculty') and the name of the Trust/Awarding Donors in any promotional material produced as a result of the award money.
- Where possible, to assist the Faculty in promoting the Trust/Awarding Donors.
- Scholarship recipients who are student performers of orchestral instrument (string, wind, brass, percussion) are required to participate in major Conservatorium performance ensembles as directed by their respective head of area. 100% attendance in these opportunities is expected unless your absence is approved by the Director of the Conservatorium and there are no compassionate or compelling reasons that prevented you from attending. Failure to comply with this responsibility may result in withdrawal of the scholarship.

Payment

- Unless otherwise indicated, the payment process for your scholarship will be initiated upon receipt of all documents required in your scholarship offer letter (allow 3 weeks from acceptance).
- Some scholarships will be paid in two instalments (usually aligned with the HECS census dates of 31 April and 31 August). This will be noted in your scholarship offer letter, with the second instalment to be dependent upon satisfactory participation in Conservatorium orchestra and ensembles as confirmed by the instrument convener and the concerts coordinator.

Conduct

- No prize holder, during the period of the prize, shall conduct him or herself in such manner as the Dean, in their absolute discretion, considers prejudicial to the reputation of the Faculty or to good order and discipline within the Faculty.
- Notwithstanding anything to the contrary implicit in any of the terms and conditions relating to the prize, the Dean may on such information as appears satisfactory may determine whether the provisions of these terms and conditions are being complied with and may withdraw the prize altogether.
- Should a condition of payment of the prize be satisfactory academic progress, the Dean in his or her absolute discretion may withdraw the award at any time if the recipient is determined to have not progressed satisfactorily.
- If the recipient declines to accept the award by the required offer lapse date as indicated in the scholarship offer letter, the offer will lapse and the Faculty will be under no liability to make payment of the prize at a later date.
- If the student to whom the prize has been awarded dies before payment of the prize, the Faculty will be under no liability whatsoever to the student's estate.
- The Dean may on such information as appears satisfactory determine whether a prize holder has by reason of illness or other cause become incapable of pursuing the course so defined by the prize or of taking further advantage thereof (as the case may be). If the Dean determines that the holder has become so incapacitated, the Faculty shall be under no liability whatsoever, but may pay such amount or amounts, to any person or persons it, in its absolute discretion, determines.

Promotion

- The Dean reserves the right to arrange for the reproduction in any newspaper, magazine, film or other medium of all or any of the works completed by the recipient as a result of the prize, after consultation with the recipient.
- The prize recipient must include an acknowledgement of the Faculty and the name of the prize in any promotional material produced as a result of the prize.
- The recipient is not to seek publicity in respect of this prize, unless with the express approval of the Faculty.
